1999 Honorary Degree Recipient

Josh Wallman, Ph.D.
Doctor of Ocular Science

Josh Wallman is honored today for a career of influential and distinguished research in vision science. As one of the world's most highly regarded researchers in the field of myopia, he has produced significant results in understanding eye growth control at the levels of visual stimuli, neuro-physiology, and most recently, biochemistry.

A native of New York, Josh came to Massachusetts to attend Harvard College. He graduated with a bachelors degree in 1965, and then entered Tufts University where he completed his Ph.D. in biology in 1972. Following his doctoral studies, Dr. Wallman completed a one-year fellowship at the Institution of Animal Behavior, Rutgers University.

In 1973 Dr. Wallman returned to New York, accepting a faculty position within the Department of Biology at City College, City University of New York. He remains there today, having risen to the rank of Professor.

A prolific researcher and author, Professor Wallman has contributed more than 50 articles to the vision science literature, is a frequent and respected presenter at scientific meetings, and is a recipient of the National Eye Institute's prestigious MERIT Award, reserved for the nation's elite core of vision scientists. A pioneer in myopia research, his work continues to energize the study of eye growth control and meaningfully impact developmental biology and other areas of vision science.

Josh Wallman's work has resulted in national and international prominence. He has been invited to serve as a member of leading scientific advisory boards and panels including the National Research Council's Working Group on Myopia, the Integrative Neuroscience Panel of the National Science Foundation; the National Eye Institute's Visual Sciences Study Section, and the Editorial Board of the Visual Neuroscience Journal. And he has fulfilled notable visiting scientist appointments in Asia, Australia, Europe, and the United States.

The New England College of Optometry is pleased to honor Josh Wallman, a world leader in myopia research, a dedicated scientist and educator, and a friend, mentor, and colleague to this institution's dedicated research community.

The Optometric Oath*

With full deliberation I freely and solemnly pledge that:

I will practice the art and science of optometry faithfully and conscientiously, and to the fullest scope of my competence.

I will uphold and honorably promote by example and action the highest standard, ethics and ideals of my chosen profession and the honor of the degree, Doctor of Optometry, which has been granted me.

I will provide professional care for those who seek my services, with concern, with compassion and with due regard for their human rights and dignity.

I will place the treatment of those who seek my care above personal gain and strive to see that none shall lack proper care.

I will hold as privileged and inviolable all information entrusted to me in confidence by my patients.

I will advise my patients fully and honestly of all which may serve to restore, maintain or enhance their vision and general health.

I will strive continuously to broaden my knowledge and skills so that my patients may benefit from all new efficacious means to enhance the care of human vision.

I will share information cordially and unselfishly with my fellow optometrists and other professionals for the benefit of patients and the advancement of human knowledge and welfare.

I will do my utmost to serve my community, my country and humankind as a citizen as well as an optometrist.

I hereby commit myself to be steadfast in the performance of this my solemn oath and obligation.
